WHEN EXPERTS AGREE.

THE roster of mining experts and geologists retained by contenders in the West End-Butler controversy is constantly swelling with the names of some of the most famous specialists in the country. These men embody the highest intellect and most varied experience that can be found today in the mining world. They are the giants of their profession and their judgment will guide the destinies of the litigation to which both sides are partially committed. It goes without saying that both sides cannot be right. One must have the apex or there is a rolling artificial blanket vein that does not convey apex rights to either party. It must be one or the other. There is no middle ground for occupancy, but the issue may be involved to an extent that would cloud the title of either contestant. But there is one undeniable fact about the litigation that cannot be controverted and that is the expense of the litigation must be borne by the stockholders. Expert testimony comes high. So does the employment of attorneys versed in the intricacies of apex litigation. Between twenty and thirty professional men are held by both companies under retaining fees. What these amount to is a matter of conjecture, but it is apparent that neither property can stand the strain of such extraordinary expense for an indefinite time.

Under the present system both mines are being mortgaged to the lawyers and their associates. This should not be allowed to continue. The stockholders' interests suggest arbitration and it is not improbable that if the matter were left wholly to the engineers already employed that they would come quickly to an understanding of the true situation and report accordingly. The experts are all men of broad education, versed in the complexities of mineral formation, and it is safe to assume that if they were given carte blanche by their principals to determine the actual rights they would come to an understanding acceptable to both sides. These gentlemen have been in apex suits before and some of them have been known to advise their clients to compromise rather than invite destruction through protracted litigation. Even in the acute case at bar they might find a happy medium for a settlement. The respective boards of directors are urged to consider this suggestion in the interest of the stockholders who serve as buffers between the upper and lower millstone.

PUBLIC BILKS.

THE Panama Pacific Exposition has started out with a programme of advertising that excites the ridicule of the New York Publisher, the mouthpiece of the newspaper owners of the eastern country. This magazine inquires if publishers are going to endure this constant infliction and why they should be chosen above all other classes to give away goods that cost them money. If a merchant was asked to supply the exposition with a million feet of lumber as an act of public spirit he would look upon the petitioner as a fit candidate for the insane asylum. He could not be persuaded to give away his stock in trade and there is no reason why he should be urged to donate a dollar to an enterprise that has millions in the treasury for promotion purposes. Nevertheless the newspapers are importuned to give away their space without the slightest return. At the same time the directors say the exposition is going to be such a great success that the stockholders will receive one or more dividends on their subscriptions. The conclusion is that these dividends are to be wrung from the publicity end of the game and that thousands which should go to legitimate advertising will be diverted to the pockets of the men who are boosting the game in San Francisco.

Not to be outdone by the California management, the Nevada Exposition board is trying to put one over the newspapers of this state. They have found an excuse for the appointment of assistants at enormous salaries. They declare they are going to hold down disbursements, but their acts belie their professions. A staff of high-salaried men has been selected to cut into the appropriation for San Diego and San Francisco but, when it comes to advertising, the commissioners get down on their knees and beg publishers to give them something for nothing that they may have more money to throw away in salaries and expense accounts and to maintain junketing parties at the expense of the funds that are being diverted from legitimate channels.

The Bonanza has space to sell. This paper has given away more free space for public uses than any other paper in the state. The management feels that it has done more than its share in advancing public interests without receiving a dollar compensation. This generous policy would be continued even now if there was any indication that the exposition commissioners were making an earnest effort to economize. From the present outlook it appears that Nevada is to be led to the altar and sacrificed for the sake of a few parasites. The cost of the State building at San Francisco has been cut down until Nevadans will have nothing more than an ugly shack to represent their State. The saying will go to a salary grab while publishers are asked to hold the sack. Thanks, gentlemen, The Bonanza is not in it this time, and it is safe to say not a single newspaper of the State will give away its space under the circumstances.

Not alone does the Nevada Exposition Commission ask for free space, but it has the nerve to ask publishers to send free copies of their papers, postage prepaid. The following letter, which has been sent to every publisher in the State, explains the attitude of the board:

In advance of an advertising campaign outlined by this commission, the purpose of which will be to arouse, among the people of the state, an interest in preparing and forwarding, under direction of the commission, products of the farms, orchards, mines and factories of the state for exhibition at the San Francisco and San Diego expositions, the co-operation of the editors and publishers of newspapers in Nevada is asked in laying a foundation which will insure the success of such a campaign.

Enclosed herewith is a brief news item which should be of interest to the people of all parts of the state. It is for publication, if it seems to you of sufficient news value. Other items will be mailed you from time to time as occasion may warrant or demand, and their consideration and publication will be appreciated.

I shall be glad if you will furnish a complimentary subscription to your paper for the files of this office from now until the end of the exposition period, if you feel so disposed. At any rate the plan under which we are working will be facilitated if you will mail copies containing gratuitous insertions of news matter.

CESSPOOLS ARE A CERTAIN MENACE PUBLIC HEALTH

The danger of cesspools, vaults and other defective drains to public health was recently pointed out in articles appearing in Reno, as well as local papers, which commented upon the fact that twenty-one cases of typhoid fever were traced to one vault in the city of Reno. Such outbreaks are more than liable to happen right in our community at most any time, since the predominance of vaults and cesspools form a constant menace to public health. Conditions existing in many sections of this town are appalling and should have immediate attention, otherwise there is no telling just where the slight infections now prevalent in this community might end. The attention of the chief commissioner of the Public Service Commission of Nevada, at the time of his last visit to Tonopah, as well as the chairman of the Board of County Commissioners and the health officer, was directed to a cellar on Main street that is overflowing with the effluvia from a neighboring septic tank and this sickening condition exists at the present time with no apparent relief in sight. Whether this is due to neglect on the part of officials entrusted with the safeguarding of public health or whether the present sanitary laws are inadequate to control a situation of this kind has not been determined, but it is safe to say that something must be done at no distant date if we are to avoid a repetition of the plague that visited our town some few years ago. If existing laws and ordinances were correctly construed it would be an easy matter to distribute more equally the burden of sewage disposal. There can be no logic in a situation that imposes present heavy sewage charges upon the few and leaves to the many a freedom from such a tax and gives them the right to pollute neighborhoods in which others are striving for sanitary conditions. The Public Service Commission of Nevada has brought relief in other instances to this town and has promised further relief in the way of reduced sewage charges providing a more liberal patronage is given to the sewer company. Co-operation on the part of the public in this all important branch of public safety is the only means of reducing the individual charge and at the same time help to reduce the doctor bills. Get the habit. Be sanitary.

CHEAP LIGHTS

No other mining district in the world is enjoying such low lighting rates. The merchant and saloon man should take advantage of this condition and provide attractive lighting for their places of business.

Now is the time to install an attractive electric sign with a bril-
